GLOSSARY OF TERMS back to top

Access: The availability of, or the permission to consult archival holdings.
Collection: An artificial accumulation of documents created or assembled by an Archive, reflecting particular subjects or formats.
Dates : Dates appearing in the guide are the outside range of dates identified in the records. They
This guide was written primarily for two purposes. The first was to provide researchers and museum staff with easier access to the Fruitlands Museums Shaker Manuscript Collection. The intent was to create a document that would allow researchers an overview of the materials in the manuscript collection and aid them in their search for specific materials. The second purpose was to better document the Shaker manuscript collection for the Museums and to arrange the manuscripts in a way that would allow easier access to the materials. Clara Endicott Sears began collecting Shaker manuscript materials with the closing of the Harvard Shaker community in 1918. After Miss Sears' death in 1960 the Museums have continued to collect Shaker Manuscripts which relate to the Harvard and Shirley communities. Presently the manuscript collection occupies approximately 18 linear feet. Access to the collection is for the most part unrestricted although there are a few items for which microfilm use is preferred due to their poor condition. Requests to 'publish from any of these materials should be discussed with the Fruitlands Museums curator. The format of the guide is based on the Western Reserve Historical Society's Guide to the Shaker Collection. This guide would not have been possible without the aid and labor of many individuals. Of particular note are Pam Smith who cataloged a large number of the Shaker Manuscripts and of course Maggie Stier whose knowledge helped identify individuals and communities, and provided much needed information. Since the museum continues to acquire Shaker manuscript materials this guide is subject to frequent revision. Comments, criticisms, and suggestions are welcome.

Jennifer Monaghan February 24, 1993

The format of this guide is based on the Western Reserve Historical Collections Guide to the Shaker Manuscript Collection. For those familiar with this publication the only exceptions or alterations to the format can be found in the Music and Inspired Writings series.

The Shaker manuscript collection has been arranged into fourteen series according to the type of document. Each series is further broken down into subseries entitled "Items" and "Volumes". Under each of these subseries manuscript materials are arranged chronologically according to the Shaker community of origin. Community of origin was determined by anyone of three criteria. These were: (1) The community in which the item was first written. (2) The community in which the writer resided or with which he/she was chiefly associated. (3) In cases where there was no indication where an item was created or the writer was unknown an educated guess representing the most appropriate community with which the item was associated was used. In cases where none of these criteria helped designate a community of origin the heading "unidentified community" was added at the end of the series. Under each subseries, the communities of origin are arranged alphabetically. And under each community of origin there is a description of the material SI dates and under some series number of items.
Descriptions of individual items and volumes are brief by necessity. However every attempt has been made to note individuals who created the material and events of import. Some additional notes on specific series are also necessary:

Correspondence: The Correspondence series is divided into volumes and items. Items consist of individual letters, copies of letters, incomplete letters, and fragments. When letters are headed with the names of nearby towns or cities they have been placed under the nearest Shaker community. If no name of community or city appears, the letter has been filed under the community with which the writer is associated. Letters written by non-Shakers are filed under the community to which they were addressed. Some letters overlap with other series in the collection such as financial records, poetry, etc. (This is true in other series as well.) Every attempt has been made to cross-reference these materials under the alternate series.

Music: The music series consists solely of volumes. These consist of both hymnals and volumes of music theory. Community of origin has been noted whenever possible. The Fruitlands identification number has been included in the description to aid in location of a particular volume. Also included for researchers who may use Daniel Patterson's "Checklist of Shaker Song Manuscripts" is the Patterson number. Other information noted under volume descriptions: If the volume contains musical notation, if the volume contains lyrics/words, if the volume contains a song title index. Often writers/creators attempted to include the composer of the song or the community where the song originated. This has also been noted in the description using the terms not noted, rarely noted, occasionally, regularly, often. (Researchers interested in the community or origin, and the composers should ask to consult the catalog worksheets for the music manuscript materials.)
